A Literature Companion for Teachers
Lorraine McDonald

“Literature has always been used as reading material in Australian schools and teachers are the interpretive authorities on literary texts; the meaning of text is filtered through the way they talk about it.” (p.3)

A Literature Companion for Teachers 2nd edition continues to provide teachers with the appropriate knowledge for this important role. It is both a revision and an update and remains true to its purpose: a key reference to enhance practising and pre-service teachers’ knowledge about how literature may be responded to, examined, interpreted, analysed, evaluated and created. Each chapter presents exemplars of quality literature, with many recent texts included in this edition.

With the 2016 Australian Curriculum: English v.8.3 as a starting point the book offers explanations, interpretations and examples for each of the four Literature strands. The quality literature texts and excerpts within serve as possible mentor texts for teachers. Each chapter offers models for teaching the literary content, and attention to learning literacy is integrated via a range of teaching opportunities. These experiences emphasise co-operative book talk, close reading to seek evidence from the text and creative application of new learning to consolidate knowledge.

Throughout the book there is a consistent focus on how language constructs meanings in texts. This emphasis is now foregrounded as an explicit concept across the Key Ideas introduced in the curriculum. Throughout the book the teaching sequence of identify, describe and explain is promoted. This is intended to ensure students move beyond codebreaking and literal level comprehension to deeper interpretation and analysis.

This edition:
• Chapter 10: Evaluating Literary Texts has been added in response to the Australian Curriculum: English Sub-strands of Evaluative language, Expressing preferences and evaluating texts, and from Year 6, Analysing and evaluating texts.
• Has a clear structure divided across three parts: Part One: The art and craft of literary texts; Part Two: Creating literary texts; Part Three: Expanding literary knowledge
• Presents comprehensive criteria tables and models guided reading discussions.
• Includes chapters on poetry, picture books and a new revised chapter on digital narratives.
• For this edition quality literary non-fiction texts have been included
• The role of each General Capability when teaching literary texts is discussed
• The probing questions for critiquing literature connected to the key concepts in the Cross-Curriculum Priorities will be presented as teaching resources available online in the Book Extras section of the PETAA website.

About the Author
Lorraine McDonald is an Honorary Fellow, School of Education, Australian Catholic University, Sydney. Lorraine, a former classroom teacher, has taught at tertiary level in Australia, the USA and UK over several decades. Her research examined the role of language in the teaching of literature and changing ways of thinking about language, literature and literacy. She has worked with undergraduate and post-graduate teachers in the fields of Literacy Education, Literature for Children and Young Adults, Linguistics and ESL and continues to work in these fields for several Australian Universities.

NEW TITLE INFORMATION
Coming November 2017
NEW UPDATED 2ND EDITION

Extent: 216 pages (PET 115)

978-1-925132-39-7
Book
RRP (Book): $44.95
Members: $29.25

978-1-925132-40-3
ePub
RRP (ePub): $29.25
Members: $19.00

How this book is structured

Part 1: The art and craft of literary texts
Chapter 2: Types of literary texts
Chapter 3: Literature and context
Chapter 4: Responding to literature
Chapter 5: Examining literature

Part 2: Creating literary texts
Chapter 6: Composing dialogue
Chapter 7: Composing description
Chapter 8: Building cohesion through vocabulary
Chapter 9: Using figurative language
Chapter 10: Evaluating literary texts

Part 3 Extending literary knowledge
Chapter 11: Poetry
Chapter 12: Reading and viewing picturebooks
Chapter 13: Literature in a digital environment